Grandma's House Educational Field Trips
Exploring Our Community, One Adventure at a Time!

At Grandma's House, we believe some of the most valuable learning experiences happen beyond the classroom. Our educational field trips encourage curiosity, independence, social development, and a deeper understanding of the world around us. Each outing provides meaningful, hands-on opportunities for children to connect what they learn with real-life experiences.

- Summer Park Hopping: Each week, children explore a different park, discovering new playgrounds, developing physical coordination, building friendships, and practicing teamwork, confidence, and social skills.
- Youth Museum: Interactive exhibits encourage creativity, imagination, problem-solving, scientific discovery, and learning through exploration.
- Public Library: Visits introduce children to community resources, strengthen early literacy, encourage a love of reading, and teach responsibility through borrowing and caring for books.
- Local Farms: Children discover where food comes from, learn about plants and animals, explore agriculture, and develop an appreciation for nature.
- Strawberry Picking: Children visit a strawberry patch to pick their own strawberries, experiencing farm-to-table learning while practicing observation, coordination, patience, and an appreciation for healthy foods.
- City Hall: Children receive an early introduction to local government, community leadership, civic responsibility, and how decisions are made to serve their city.
- Fire Department: Visits introduce fire safety, emergency preparedness, teamwork, and the important role firefighters play in protecting our communities.
- Police Department: Children learn about community helpers, personal safety, public service, and how police officers contribute to community well-being.

Learning Beyond the Classroom
Our field trips are more than fun outings. They are opportunities for children to practice communication, follow directions, ask questions, develop independence, and experience the world firsthand.

By exploring their community at an early age, children begin to understand how the world works, how people contribute, and how they too can make a difference.

At Grandma's House, every adventure has a purpose, and every experience is an opportunity to learn!
